okay - my XRP buy ended up only being a [redacted] purchase (it started to go up quickly so I didn't buy the other [redacted]) - so no approval was needed in retrospect. But will create a new email trail for the approvals for the sales.

Thanks - hope you are enjoying your EU travels!!

Thanks, Brad. Your recent XRP sales are approved retroactively. I can check your wallets to see when you sold and how much you sold so no need to send me that info. If you plan on buying/selling [redacted] worth of XRP going forward, just give me/[redacted] a heads up.

I'll write up a Policy Variance for these recent April/May XRP sales and for your last XRP buy (unless you also want to separately obtain [redacted] retroactive approval - if so, just copy me on your e-mail requesting her approval for my files. Thanks).

You don't need Chris L's (supervisor) approval.

I am realizing that I too could get more specific approval from our earlier email exchanges to BUY XRP - to now get specific approval(s) to sell.

Like Patrick, I now have a large tax obligation upcoming and have sold XRP (over [redacted] in the closing days of April - and during the start of May.

I believe I sent you my wallets - but I'm not sure if I was explicit about approvals to sell.

Please let me know what you need from me.

Best,
Brad

Aog is the arbiter of these things. Adding her here.

As she is on vacation, if you don't hear from her in a few days you and I can discuss the best path forward.

Hi Brad,

I'm trying to get some liquidity to cover my state tax bill on the XRP grant and will need to be in a range above the [REDACTED] limit in code of conduct (likely closer to [REDACTED]). Can you please confirm that I have the all-clear?
